Accommodations:

All student interns are responsible for arranging and paying for their own accommodations; whether it be off campus housing or dorm housing.

The University of Miami (UM) offers Conference Housing in a dormitory for a reduced fee to student interns who are participating in any educationally-based summer program that is affiliated with or sponsored by UM. To be eligible for dorm housing, students must be enrolled in classes at a college or university of their choice on or before September, 2017. Students may be asked for proof of enrollment prior to dorm check-in. Please make sure to have a copy of your class enrollment available in the event it is requested. Note: Students will be responsible for their meals; dorm housing does not include access to a kitchen, refrigerator, or microwave. If you have further questions about UM dormitory housing, please call the UM Department of Housing and Residential Life, 305-284-4505, or e-mail them at : housing@miami.edu.

Particular to the NIH Neurotrauma Summer Research Program:

- Interns traveling 30 miles or more to participate in the NIH program will be considered “Out-of-town” guests and eligible for a “Housing cost share reimbursement” of up to $1,500 ($150/week for the 10-week program).
- The 30 mile threshold is defined by the distance between the UM medical campus and the address provided on the student application.
- Reimbursements are paid by The Miami Project after the end of the 10-week program.
- An invoice from the housing location showing check-in/ check-out dates between May 21st and July 28th, 2017 must be provided as proof of stay.

Questions:

If you have any questions, please email or call: Maria Chagoyen, Education Coordinator (305) 243-7108 / MPInfo@med.miami.edu
